From father Michael – I am writing this on the train on a rare visit to my home Diocese of Birmingham which gives me time to reflect on the wonderful weekend we have just had together – the oil of chrism spread across the altar, the precious relic of St Eugène de Mazenod cemented into the base of the altar, bishop, priests, servers, choristers, and you the holy people of God all playing our vital part in the celebration of something that is well nigh impossible to put into words. I suppose that is what liturgy is all about, "deep is calling on deep…., your torrents and all your waves swept over me," entering the mystery, encountering the love and mercy of God in the depths of our being.
The feast of the Liturgy then overflowed into a feast of food, drink and friendship and all adorned with some beautiful flowers, this surely is what it means to be the Church. Thank you for being such a wonderful parish. I am proud to be your priest and look forward to the next chapter of our life together. My return train from Birmingham awaits!
